

A LIST OF LOCALITIES BOTANIZED IN PANAMA

By John D. Dwyer
St. Louis University & Missouri Botanical Garden

The following is a list of localities in which botanists have collected in the Republic of Panama. The names of the botanists are included. The provinces in which the localities are found are designated by the following abbreviations.

B - Bocas del Toro
CH - Chiriquí
CO - Coclé
COL - Colon
CZ - Canal Zone
D - Darién
H - Herrera
L - Los Santos
P - Panama
S - San Blas
V - Veraguas

In 1964 I discussed the history of plant collecting in Panama (Ann. Missouri Bot. Garden 61: 109-117). It must be borne in mind that the Canal Zone was instituted in the 20th century and that the 19th century collectors like Sutton Hayes botanized extensively in the future Canal Zone area. With the establishment of Gatún Lake certain collecting areas, e.g. Matachin disappeared under water. On the other hand Barro Colorado Island arose as an island as a product of the same flooding.

The very recent plant collections in Panama of Kurt Blum, Kenton Chambers, James Duke, John Dwyer and his students, John Ebinger, Joseph Kirkbride, Walter Lewis and his students, Sydney McDaniel, William Stern, and Edwin Tyson are noteworthy.

A noteworthy but minor point is that Paul Standley, the author of the Flora of the Panama Canal Zone (Contr. U.S. Nat. Herb. 27:1-386, 1928) consistently misspelled Tocumen as Tecumen.

I wish to acknowledge the assistance of the U.S. Army Tropic Test Center (Miraflores Annex), Canal Zone and that of WEPOR (Weather Engineers Corporation of Panama).

I have been unable to find the given name or initials of several collectors; these are: Babbitt; Dawe; Gagelin; Hadamard; Hood; Johansen; Jobbins; Kupfer; Lee; Maggs; Pease; Roy; Sargent; Shannon; Sinclair; Werner; Weston.

A few months ago I remarked on the current status of plant collecting in Panama (Taxon 17: 107-108, 1968): 'The alpine reaches of the Province of Chiriqui have attracted numerous collectors for about a century. The Province of Coclé, especially at El Valle de Antón and Penonomé have drawn a fair number of collectors. Bocas del Toro shows almost fifty localities, but these are mainly in the general area of Almirante and Changuinola, with one collector, H. von Wedel, responsible for 80% of the collection sites. The roadless but river-dissected Province of Darién was poorly collected up to the year 1959. The vigorous botanizing of Dr. James Duke of Battelle Memorial Institute (Columbus, Ohio) over the past five years has changed the situation markedly. The Province of San Blas (or better Comarca de San Blas), especially the hills or low mountains of the mainland is virtually unexplored. The Provinces of Veraguas, Los Santos, and Herrera have been very poorly collected ...'
